Dear [Redacted]

I was pleased to learn of your safe escape from the recent tragic events in South Vietnam.

I trust that the refugee relief processing system will be able to ensure adequate handling of your case and that the Voluntary Agencies, which are arranging for sponsorship under this system, will find a proper place where your wide range of capabilities can be used productively.

While the Central Intelligence Agency has no appropriate vacancies at this time, you can be sure that you will be kept in mind and that you will be contacted if a suitable vacancy is found either within this Agency or on the outside.

Please accept my best wishes for a more happy life in this country.

Sincerely,

/s/ W. E. Colby

The Honourable William E. Colby
Director,
The Central Intelligence Agency
Washington D.C.

Sir:

I am [redacted] from South Vietnam. I have worked for the Agency during the last fourteen years. My code name with your organization is [redacted]. I have managed and successfully escaped to freedom and am now at [redacted] reunited with my family after more than three weeks of separation.

I am writing you today expecting some assistance for a start making a new life in this new society of mine.

We are still now confined in the perimeter of the refugee camp pending security clearance and formalities of sponsorship.

I still desire to serve the Agency in any position which would be offered to me. My dependents include six persons, my wife and five children of whom my second daughter now pursuing her college education in France, and my first son studying at Monterey Peninsula College in his freshman year.

Wishing to hear from you soon, I remain,

Very sincerely yours,
